Stakeholder engagement has the goal of improving oral health care. They all entail raising public awareness in a planned and active manner, assisting in the improvement of tactics, and assisting in the implementation of effective and consistent plans.

Stakeholder identification entails compiling a list of those who provide, finance, and receive care, as well as state and municipal policymakers and non-traditional stakeholders. Scanning environmental elements and staff recommendations can help with identification.

To involve stakeholders, office management takes a step-by-step strategy. To involve the stakeholders, it is first and foremost necessary to understand the assessment, history, and probable outcome. Prior to any conversation, research is required to explain the patients' insurance policies, uncovered policy holders, children with Healthy Kids policies through Medicaid, and the area's job condition. Then, in order to attain the goal, objectives, scope, and outcomes will be defined. Following the identification and analysis of stakeholders, implementation strategies must be devised.
